Education Board Plans Reduction In Membership—Albright Resigns

English teacher to teach in Monticello—Voters will be asked to reduce board membership from nine to six—School tax collections begin April 8—Other board business.

Miss Thelma Albright will leave the Addison High School faculty at the close of the present school year to accept a teaching position in the English department of Monticello. She did not turn back a signed contract at a deferred meeting of the Board of Education, held Tuesday night. Several applications are being reviewed. This and the resolution to submit to the voters at the July election the matter of reducing the board membership from nine to six highlighted the meeting.

This meeting was marked by the absences of three members of the board who are seriously ill, being Miss Fannie Curtis, William Pepper and Clark Baxter. Those present were President Maurice Miller, Trustees Andrew W. Knebel, Belenden Ackerson, Dr. Horace Auringer, Mrs. Susan D. Perry and Robert A. Willson.

State Champion
Principal Irving R. Gladstone brought to the attention of the board members the fact that Paul Thomson won third place in the stock judging contests held at Cornell University Farm and Home Week. This was in competition with high schools throughout the state. In the first summaries received this was overlooked by the college authorities.

School Taxes
The collection of school taxes will begin next Monday April 8 and continue until Wednesday May 8. The warrant instructing the clerk to collect the taxes was issued at Tuesday night's meeting. The salary of Frank E. Finnerty of the Agriculture department was raised $50. This was not raised at the time the other teacher contracts were submitted with raised amounts. He was granted the increase owing to his expenses in traveling about the area to various farms supervising projects.

A request was received from a woman of the community asking permission to attend late afternoon classes in sewing. The request was granted and board members felt they should encourage adult attendance at school classes.

Principal Gladstone told board members that the State Department of Education is eliminating regents as fast as possible and pointed to the fact that the only

The Rt. Rev. Bartel H. Reinheimer, Episcopal Bishop of Rochester diocese was in this village Sunday night to administer the sacrament of confirmation to a class of three candidates. One young lady was unable to be at the confirmation owing to high water outside the village.

Those who were confirmed were Ruth Ann Smyth, Phyllis O'Reilly and Edward Hunt. At the conclusion of the ceremonies Bishop Reinheimer gave a talk on "Hospitality" stressing the fact that we are guests of the God in the church and in this world. And our actions as guests towards God should have three-fold significance for we should consider our actions as guests towards God, as guests towards our host and towards other guests.

The Rt. Rev. Reinheimer was scheduled to leave Addison for Watkins Glen after the ceremony, but was detained here by high water across the highways leading to Watkins. He spent the night in the rectory here as the guest of the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch, pastor of the church of the Redeemer.

An informal reception was held in the Guild rooms after the church services for members of the congregation and guests with the Bishop as the guest of honor. Miss Katharine Darrin was in charge of the reception committee.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

District Attorney Dewey led the race for presidential delegates over Arthur Vandenberg and President Roosevelt led over Vice President Garner in the Wisconsin primary Tuesday. This was the first test of strength in this year's race for high party honors. Mr. Roosevelt has not indicated whether he will be an active candidate or not, friends entering his name in the primary.

Disastrous floods scattered through the country the past week from California to New York. The Susquehanna Valley was hardest hit, 12 persons losing their lives in the Sunbury-Wilkes-Barre area. Fear of fire combined with terror of flood when huge gasoline tanks were overturned and exploded at Wilkes-Barre. In New York the principal damage was in the Canisteo and Chemung valleys, Hornell suffering a broken dike.

Five million Chinese are reported on the verge of starvation in the North China province of Hopei. Inhabitants of 12,000 villages are reduced to eating bark, straw and porridge made of cotton husks because of famine left by last summer's floods. In some sections of the province flood waters are still covering the land and new inundations are threatened.

John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O. issued threats of a labor-farmer party this week if the Democrats do not nominate a man of his choice. Washington comment on the announcement classed Lewis' statement more or less as a "trial balloon."

War in the west section continued to be mostly a battle of words between the dictators and Chamberlain. The Nazis claimed overwhelming success of about five to one in air clashes with the allies since the beginning of the war while Chamberlain in a speech indicated the allies had been victorious in a majority of the dog fights in the air.

Flood Menace Subsides—Thousands of Acres Inundated in Week-end Storm

Addison dikes again prove worth—Creek reaches 1935 stage—B. & O. cut blockaded—Ice goes out and prevents jams—South Addison family marooned Rescue attempts by peace officers and firemen—Many cellars filled.

The worthwhileness of the Addison dike system, the quick thinking of a group of public spirited men who dammed the B. & O. cut at the huge cakes started cascading Tuscarora street and the manner in which the ice went out marked the hectic week-end of floods in this vicinity when water equal to or exceeding the July floods of 1935, inundated thousands of acres.

The flood stage started Saturday when melting snow aided by a continuous drizzle rain throughout the entire day caused the snow to melt and caused creeks in the vicinity to rise slowly and the Canisteo River rose rapidly beginning Saturday noon and gave forewarning of the floods which were to come, for at midnight Saturday the Canisteo river was three feet above normal in the channel at the Main street bridge. However, the ice in the river was holding and seemed to be quite solid.

Ice Goes Out
A pool which had been formed here to estimate when the ice would go out, held that the ice would not go out until Sunday, and with the river rapidly rising, at 7:30 Sunday morning the ice started to break up in the rear of the Renken plant.

River Up Sunday
Sunday the greatest bulk of the water began inundating lands thru-out the village. It was not until afternoon that Tuscarora Creek went on a rampage. While the waters in the creek had been above normal, they had caused no extreme flooding.

Borden Dark
A tree floating in the stream took out some electric light wires feeding Borden and vicinity and left that community without power from 5 A. M. Saturday until 9 Sunday morning. During most of that time electric company employees, numbering 11, braved the dangers of the swelling waters to rig a breeches-buoy or "bosun's chair" to get to the power lines and repair them. Power was restored early Sunday (Continued on page 5)

Village Board Approves Daylight Saving and $12,980 Budget

Old Board thanks Allen for services—Reorganization meeting votes daylight saving April 27 to September 29—Frank French appointed street commissioner—Mayor appoints committees.

The Village budget of $12,980 was adopted, daylight saving dates were set from April 27 to September 29 and committees for the year were appointed at the first meeting of the newly elected village board Monday night in the village hall courtroom.

Pay Bills

The first order of business was the last meeting of the old board to wind up official business and pay bills. Mayor Angelo Sisto presided and Trustees Russell Allen, Hubert Orr and Norman Phelps, Sr. were present. Bills audited and ordered paid were: Walter Aldrich, nails, 18c; Wilfred M. Miller for treasurer's report $25; Charles Salerno, service as village attorney, $82.82; Ernest Fritts, gasoline, $1.88; Mrs. Mary Hibbard, cleaning jail and court room, $2.50; W. R. $10.50 and Southern Tier News, Inc. $13.81.

Allen Commended

Mayor Sisto paid tribute to the work of Russell Allen, the retiring trustee and expressed regret at seeing him leave the board for they have worked together seven years. Mr. Allen has been active and spent time acquainting himself with village problems and set about righting many of the things which he could do. A rising vote of thanks was given him by all members of the Board. The Board then adjourned.

Mayor Sisto then called the new board to order. This consisted of Mayor Sisto, Trustees Hubert Orr, Norman Phelps, Sr., William Cooper, a former Mayor and Albert Root.

The board unanimously reappointed Wilfred Miller as village clerk for two years, treasurer for one year and collector for one year.

French Commissioner

Unanimous appointment was also given Frank French as street commissioner. Heretofore it has been the policy to allot $600 for a commissioner and when this sum is expended work ceases. Under the

FORTITUDE

Once in a while misfortune is visited upon a person in more than liberal measure. Sometimes such a person is so overwhelmed by misfortune it is impossible for them to forget their troubles for a minute and all their friends are compelled to suffer with them. Much more infrequently a person sorely afflicted is able to face trouble with a smile and to literally laugh in the face of adversity. Such a person is possessed of the rare quality of real fortitude, an example of which has been exemplified in the life of Mrs. Sidney D. MacDowell.

Mrs. MacDowell was struck down by illness time after time. Years ago her physical condition became such that her life was despaired of by all except herself. For she alone had the courage to believe she could hold to life in the face of great odds. And out of this great courage sprang the strength to accomplish that which medicine alone could never have done. Out of the shadow of death she came after a severe shock, and little by little she forced herself to take one step at a time until she could get around the house, and finally her courage held until she was able to fight her way, a step at a time to her seat in her beloved church.

Year after year she had to fight that battle every day, yet her courage never failed—life was so worth while no effort was too great to make to continue its enjoyment. And the soul-racking effort it was costing she successfully hid from her friends by a cheery countenance and uncomplaining words. If there ever was true fortitude, then Mrs. MacDowell was possessed of it. Her life will always live in the minds of those who knew her, a shining example of the spirit overcoming the infirmities of the flesh.

Mrs. MacDowell will be greatly missed by all those close to her in kin and friendship. But she will also be sorely missed by those who scores not closely acquainted who knew of her matchless courage and were themselves borne up in times of trouble by the glowing example of her fortitude.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

A bill was recently introduced in the U. S.
Senate which was designed to lessen unemployment. The proposal was to give employers tax reductions and even subsidies on wages in certain cases where they would replace machine production with manual labor.

We have not read the bill but, on the surface the proposal itself does not promise much in the way of putting men back to work. To deliberately throw out an efficient machine and do its work with labor subsidized directly or indirectly by government funds would be just another move in the fallacious thought that prosperity can be bought by federal spending of tax funds. It would be not only uneconomical to perform by hand many things which are done better by machine, but it would be a step backward in the course of human progress. Since the conception of the wheel, man's basic invention to lighten human tasks, progress has been achieved by multiplying the efficiency of tools for workers to accomplish their work.

Both private and government observers estimate that there are some 10 to 12 million unemployed in the country today. Those who look on the dark side of the picture aver not more than half of this number can be put back to work even with the return to really prosperous times. Their theory for balancing our economy is to divide and re-divide jobs until two men do the present work of one, or having two men do the work now accomplished by one man and a machine.
To accept this theory is to admit America is no longer to be a land of opportunity.

Unsound though the principle of the bill referred to at the beginning of this discussion, it does contain one definite bit of promise. That grain of promise rests in the fact some legislators are beginning to wake up to the fact that private industry holds the only key to solution of the unemployment problem. When this truth is fully grasped by law-makers in general they may awake to the fact business cannot and will not take up the slack in employment until business is allowed to come out of the dog-house to which it was chased some seven years ago.

Business wants to put men back to work. It has a double purpose in wanting to put men back to work. First, and selfishly enough perhaps, it wants to put men back to work so as to make a profit from their labor. Second, selfishly also, business wants to put men back to work to save taxes consumed in supporting those on relief rolls. We say "selfishly", but the selfishness of business is no worse than the selfishness of an individual who wants to increase his earning power to better his condition. This selfishness is nothing more or less than the desire to make a profit, and upon the profit motive the economic greatness of this country has been built steadily from our national beginning.

It is time that legislators stopped to analyze the real cause for unemployment. It is time they opened their eyes to the fact business desires to solve the unemployment problem, but is prevented by drastic measures devised in the last decade, measures which put burdens on business that stifle expansion and kill initiative. If Congress would suddenly reverse itself and instead of trying to ham-string business would repeal some of the measures that have sent capital into hiding, then the unemployment problem would be quickly solved. Unless business is given the chance to expand the unemployment situation will remain acute regardless of all the legislative schemes for government spending to bring prosperity.

RATHBONE GRANGE

Last week Rathbone Grange celebrated its 50th anniversary with fitting ceremonies at which the discharged mortgage on the Grange home was burned. Two charter members of Rathbone Grange were able to be present, while a few others who were affiliated nearly as long ago with this organization were able to be there. This speaks well of the hardihood of those who have spent a major bit of their lives on the farm, for few who have a hand in the early days of an organization ever live to see it celebrate a half century of growth.

And Rathbone Grange has grown in many ways. Although not boasting a charter membership in Rathbone Grange the writer is able to recall many of the early events connected with the organization, as a farm boy living in the vicinity.
If it is pardonable to pursue the personal a bit farther he can boast of having been master of the Grange some 30 years ago. Retrospection is said to be a weakness, or sure sign of old age yet to refuse to let the mature years, or aged turn back the pages is to forfeit many bright pictures of the past which are otherwise forgotten.

Rathbone Grange in 1895 was housed on the second floor of a wooden building near the Fred Martin store. Beneath was a room used at various times for a court room, town hall, polling place and barber shop. The grange hall was approached through a small anteroom with thin partition which transmitted the merest whisper from the sanctum sanctorum. Here the candidates for membership awaited invitation while Grange convened in secret (?) session. The hall itself was a surprisingly flexible place. Originally it seemed to be about 150 feet long but, strangely enough by the time I became master it had shrunk to about 35 or 40 feet. On the wall were emblems of the order, in particular a sickle artistically covered with lichens. At the end was a small platform seven inches high on which Grange children spoke many a piece with terrific oratory.

Not so much the hall but the people make a Grange. There were some fine characters around Rathbone in those days among whom stand out a beloved English couple, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cook. Mr. and Mrs. Loper were always there, Mr. and Mrs. John McWilliams, Mr. and Mrs.
George Merring, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Willard, Ezekiel Cook, the Hanrahan family, Mr. and Mrs. Martin and the Van Ziles stand out in memory among the two score who attended at the turn of the century. What cakes those women could bake, and what delicious ice cream was served hot summer nights.

It was about 1910 or 1911 Rathbone Grange decided to have a home of its own and purchased a house and lot which was formerly owned by Parker Young. The same lot is now being used.
We had several "bees", tore out some partitions and eventually fixed the place up with a hall even though the floors were pretty uneven. That was an old, old house and some of the huge pine boards torn out of the partitions told mute stories of the enormous trees which once grew on the hills around Rathbone.

In the last thirty or forty years most of the people who belonged to Rathbone Grange in those days have died. Some have left children and grandchildren who are now active in the organization their forebears once kept alive through early, hard days. But the Grange has lived on, the only non-religious organization to survive in that small community. May its usefulness continue unimpaired through another fifty years.

WISHFUL FALLACIES

Those merchants who wishfully believe that laws destroying or hampering their competitors would bring business flocking to them would do well to read a little merchandising history. For that history abundantly proves that competition is among the lesser causes of retail mortality.

According to a survey made by the United States Chamber of Commerce, 37.2 per cent of retail failures are due to lack of capital; 31.4 per cent to incompetence; 4.9 per cent to inexperience; 2.1 per cent to unwise credits; 1.7 per cent to fraud; a little less than 1 per cent to neglect of business; about one-half of one per cent to personal extravagance; 15.6 per cent to such disasters as flood and fire. Only 3.9 per cent—less than one failure in 25—result from competition.

In other words, the intelligently operated, adequately financed business has little to fear from competition. And, irrespective of competition, the slothful, wasteful and inexperienced merchant is almost certain to go to the wall. That is natural economic law, and man-made law can do nothing about it.

THE TYRANT'S HEEL

Great credit should be given those volunteer workers who roamed about the village doing good and especially for their work in erecting the sand wall to prevent Tuscarora Creek waters from flowing into the village proper.

The Advertiser thanks the members of the Village Board for their expressions of appreciation. Monday evening. Most times we receive brickbats for our efforts and our writings and words of praise sort of leave us speechless for we seem on the defensive most of the time and being praised is a new role. Thank you gentlemen.

And speaking of the Village Board, Attorney Charles Crane reminded the group that only one elected official had a decent head of hair, the rest of the group being bald, and including your scribe, in the category of those bald. And I'm reminded that a friend of mine one time told me my Dad had a sense of humor when he named me "Harry".

Sergeant Burnett of the State Police told a friend Monday that the flood waters receded so fast that when he went on one trip he drove through water to the running board and when he returned the dash was blinding.

Mr. RAMBLER:
I want to congratulate you for your little item regarding people who leave the church because they do not like their clergyman. I wondered—were their pledges of loyalty given to the preacher—if they should happen to like him—or to God and his church.

It would seem that Demas who foresook Paul in his time of need, has left many descendants. Is it possible that they fail to comprehend what a shoddy type of Christianity they represent?

It has been said "We do not go to church to be made comfortable", therefore I expect my pastor's sermons to have a Vital Element that touches life at all points, showing us our weak places and telling us how to strengthen them.

Then I should expect to give him as much respect as I do my physician and instead of going out and "squawking" take the medicine he has prescribed, and thus profit by his advice. When we of the churches are more ready to pray for our pastors, than to criticize them, it will show that our religion has some good, healthy "deep roots" that are not easily taken up and transplanted in another place.
"Ereotic".

From time to time wishes have been expressed here for some sort of artificial lake. Well, that lake is here. If you don't believe me, go down in front of the high school building where the pavement has settled and view this broad expanse of water.

On a recent drive to Canisteo Hubert Orr and the Missus counted 181 deer visible from their car. Who said hunters depleted the population? And with the thaws the deer will be able to find food.

A man over in Perry advertised just before Easter for a Christmas tree, secured one, put it on his lawn and decorated it. He said, "If we are going to have Christmas weather at Easter, I'm going all the way and enjoy the trimmings".

ASK
The Scientist

If you have a question for the scientists, mail it to the New York Press Association, The Castle, Syracuse, N. Y. The Science Board of Syracuse University's Radio Workshop will answer in these columns each week those questions considered most timely and interesting.

QUESTION. Do the lower animals have a form of communication?

ANSWER. The general opinion among naturalists is that most animals have some form of language.
The usual forms of language used are vocal and sign languages. Thru these media animals are able to convey such feelings as fear, courage, pleasure, displeasure, suspicion, jealousy, hate and love.

Animals which are closely associated recognize the sign language and usually govern their behavior accordingly. Closely associated with the animal's power of expression is a keen power of observation. Animals are quick to recognize sign language. This is especially true of animals that form herds or flocks.

Among certain herds of wild animals, sentinels are posted and members of the group take their turn on duty. It is said that when one of the members on guard shows signs of becoming tired, another member will walk out to take his place and the tired animal will walk back to join the herd.

An experiment related to the love life of birds which was conducted by an American naturalist illustrates keen observation among birds.

While on a collecting trip in the South, the naturalist found a pair of tanagers. He shot the male and in a couple of days he went back to the same place and found the female had mated with another male. He shot the second male and continued to go back at intervals of several days until he had shot five or six mates of this same female.

Upon examining the feathers of the birds he found that the first male shot had the most beautiful color; the second a little less beautiful; the third still less; and the last the least.

The female apparently always selected the best dressed male first despite the fact that birds are not supposed to be able to distinguish color. Although the coloration of birds increases in brilliancy during the mating season, the colors may be incidental to other features of the plumage which the birds notice and use as a sign language.

In general, wild animals use sign language more than vocal. They apparently have the philosophy, the less you say the better off you are.

QUESTION. Does it injure a maple tree to tap it for sap?

ANSWER. Not unless it is done excessively. Sometimes as many as 22 sap buckets are hung on a single tree but this is too many and injuries the tree. — Prof. Nelson Brown, Forester.

QUESTION. What is an atom?

ANSWER. Suppose we take a diamond which is pure carbon and cut it into two pieces. If we take a hammer and hit each of these pieces we can break them into many small pieces. We can look at them under a microscope and see each of them. We can continue to break them until finally they are so small that we cannot see them.

The limit of such sub-division is what we call the atom, and if we break an atom into two pieces we no longer have an atom of carbon, we have something else.

If all the people in the world started to count the number of atoms in a diamond ring at the rate of one a second, they would not live long enough to count them. The atom has never been seen.—Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

QUESTION. How can water wells be located scientifically?

ANSWER. The trained geologist can locate wells scientifically without the aid of any magic. He looks around at the depth and character of the soil, the nature of the rocks, their slope and depth, the character of the vegetation on the surface which might indicate springs or impervious layers of rock.

By weighing all of these various bits of evidence he can tell you where is the best place to drill for water with a minimum of cost in labor and other expense. The geologist can calculate also how deep you will have to dig before you get to a zone of permanent water saturation. Dr. Sidman Poole, geographer.

QUESTION. Is baldness inherited?

ANSWER. Yes. The interesting fact is that women must receive the inheriting factors for baldness from both parents in order to be bald, whereas a man needs only to receive the factors from one of the parents. Baldness is dominant in the male and recessive in the female, and that accounts for this difference between men and women in the matter of inheriting baldness.

Any hair tonic that we know about has no effect on baldness.
However, men get a great deal of pleasure out of rubbing it in, and perhaps for this reason it has great value.—Dr. Ernest Reed, geneticist.

WASHINGTON
NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
W. STERLING COLE

The Temporary National Economic Committee headed by Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, which was created for the purpose of making a full and complete study and investigation with respect to the concentration of economic power in, and financial control over the production and distribution of goods and services, is now investigating some of the activities of the various state agencies. Interstate trade barriers is the subject now to be considered by the Committee. So far T. N. E. C. has investigated the Automobile Industry, with particular attention to automobile patents, also the Milk Industry, Poultry Industry, Insurance, the Liquor Industry, Consumers' Problems, Investment Banking and the use of Patents.

The Senate by an overwhelming vote has finally after a two week filibuster approved the amendments to the Hatch clean politics law which will bring within the application of the present law, several thousand state highway and social security employees. The measure is now before the House and rumor has it that unless unforeseen circumstances arise, no great effort will be made to bring the bill up on the floor. In fact, it is so far down on the legislative calendar as to make enactment unlikely this session of Congress. Should no further action be taken on the bill, it will be necessary to re-introduce the measure in the next Congress where it will again have to run the gauntlet of approval or disapproval of both the House and Senate.

The growing tendency on the part of a majority of the American public to stay out of foreign entanglements, coupled with a desire to rid our country of undesirable criminal elements and to protect the American economic and political system from foreign threats, is believed to be responsible for the introduction in Congress of nearly one hundred bills affecting aliens. The principal objects of many of these bills are the deportation, detention, job exclusion and compulsory finger printing of certain classes of aliens.

The House Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation has approved a World War widows pension bill. Under the bill, a World War widow without children may be paid a pension of $20 a month, provided she married the veteran prior to July 3, 1921, and regardless of whether the veteran died of a service-connected disability. Dependent widows who married the veteran prior to May 13, 1938, and who have one child by the veteran would be entitled to $28 per month two children $34 with a limit of $56 per month for larger families. The present bill, should it become a law will remove the necessity of showing a service connected disability of any degree on the part of the veteran.

The senate committee on Banking and Currency is ready to call a halt on the administration's foreign silver purchase program. By a vote of 14 to 4 they voted to discontinue the authority of the Treasury to make such purchases.
The Treasury already has some $3,000,000,000 ounces of silver.

The American Minister to Canada, James H. R. Cromwell, who incidentally is the husband of America's richest woman, the former Doris Duke, was severely taken to task by members of the Senate and House for advocating in a public speech, that all neutral nations including the United States help the allied cause. On the ground that such a statement on the part of an American Minister was a violation of United States neutrality, a resolution has been introduced in the House, recommending to the President that Minister Cromwell be recalled.

Slated for consideration by the House ahead of the Hatch clean politics amendment is the Welter-Logan bill designed to regulate the regulators by preventing administrative absolutism. Testimony before committees of Congress reveals many instances of abuse, going far beyond the intention of Congress when the government agency concerned was created.
Principal agencies affected will be the National Labor Relations Board, Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Veterans Administration and the Federal Loan Agency which includes the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The bill has passed the Senate.

Creek Rises Rapidly

Sunday afternoon the waters in the creek began to rise suddenly and continued going up until about 9 o'clock Sunday night. The water rose so rapidly and in such volumes that it ran over the B. & O. tracks at Tuscarora street. A volunteer crew of workers under the direction of Mayor Angelo Sisto and others realizing the danger of this water going through the Tuscarora street cut and into Steuben street and thence to Main, built a sand bag and wood dam from stone wall to stone wall in the cut, blocking out train traffic, but also saving three foot of water 20 feet wide flowing through the village. This effective dam proved a savior for the village.

B. & O. Traffic Halted

The B. & O. traffic was shut off beginning at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the late afternoon train came to Addison, discharged its freight, passengers and mail and went over the "Y" in Tuscarora over tracks partially covered with water. The water rose so rapidly that the train was unable to make its return trip to Galeton and remained in Addison with passengers, mail and freight until 9:30 Monday morning.

North Side Flood

The northern end of the village, ordinarily left high and dry in flood times, experienced its share of the floods, for water flowed from the Goodhue hill in cascades and late Saturday night and throughout Sunday tore away earth, walks and deposited them on Front street, on the Erie tracks and in the adjacent buildings, so that there was from six to 30 inches of water in cellars along Maple and Wall streets. Sewers were blocked quickly by stones and debris which covered the openings. Attempts to find them proved fruitless in most cases and the water chose the best means of flowing down the steep hill and created its own channels. The water whirled about Wall street and deposited two inches of water, stones and mud in the guild hall of the Episcopal Church.

Drama

The dramatic flooding of South Addison and the attempts at rescue of the Earl Morseman family proved the highlight of the dramatic incidents of the day and drew a crowd of over 200 to see Addison firemen, summoned by a fire alarm signal, state police, under Sergeant Charles Burnett and conservation officials try to rescue the members of the family. However, the officials realized it was safer for the five members of the family with John Butler, a cripple, to remain in the house rather than attempt to get a boat across the swiftly flowing waters. Fire Chief John O'Keefe of the Addison department threw a rope with a stone on the end, 200 feet from safety across the swirling waters to the house. Then a stronger rope was thrown over and then a rowboat hauled to the family in case it was needed. Water receded before the rescue was necessary. Bystanders stated there was more water on the flats there than in the now famous flood of 1935.

Erie trains maintained schedules but were running on caution through most of the territory from Hornell to Elmira. Schedules were being maintained but a little late in most cases.

Vacationists Delayed

Many Easter vacationists and visiting friends and relatives were marooned in Addison when highways east and west of the village were inundated. The highway to Painted Post was under three feet of water at times and two cars were overturned by the force of the water. Many employees of the Corning Glass Works and Ingersoll-Rand Companies were forced to remain in Addison Monday morning until the roads were cleared at 11:30 o'clock.

Detours

Some traffic was maintained from Addison to Corning over the Goodhue Hill through Curtis and into Painted Post. There was no traffic from Corning to Elmira as Route 17 and 17-E were flooded east of Corning. This situation likewise cleared up in the afternoon and traffic was opened west on Route 17 to Buffalo and east to Binghamton.

Cold Lessens Danger

Sunday night there was indication that the flood waters would recede when a cold wind came and caused a slight freezing of the ground and surface waters. This prevented the thawing through Sunday night which would have brought disaster to this vicinity. The cold snap continued throughout half of Monday and enabled a great deal of the flood waters to run off. The river-Saturday night was within inches of the B. & O. bridge and ice cakes were heard pounding the bridge throughout the night. A group of coal gondolas loaded with ballast were kept on the trestle throughout the night and until noon Sunday, hooked to a locomotive under a full head of steam in case the bridge started to go.

Cellars Flooded

Late Sunday night cellars along Steuben street began to be flooded from surface water which was much cleaner than the water from the river, which seeped into many places. Main street cellars were flooded beginning at noon. The houses on lower Colwell street and vicinity were flooded out beginning early Sunday morning and the water remained until an early hour Monday morning when the river receded and took the surface water with it.

Deputy Sheriff Dick Riffe and Conservation Officer Ray S. Reed were here early Monday checking on conditions and assisting where necessary in rerouting traffic. The Tuscarora Creek rampage poured water over the southern end of the village along Cleveland, Farnham, South and adjacent streets and completely covered the school grounds and adjacent yards. But the waters of the creek receded as rapidly as they came and the water began draining off late Sunday night.

The river dropped Monday and late Monday afternoon was five feet under the flood stage of late Sunday afternoon.

Main street merchants, remembering their experiences of previous floods, raised stock from cellars, moved motors and perishables. In many cases water seeped into cellars so that throughout Monday in most Main street and vicinity places water was up to boiler doors or ash pits and there were no coal fires. The flood was the chief topic of conversation throughout the vicinity Monday as everyone recited his or her experience with the water. As far as can be learned there was no great damage done in the village.

Crop and Feed Loans Are Now Available

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1940, are now available to farmers in all areas as part of the regular loan program of the Farm Credit Administration to enable farmers to file their applications early and arrange their 1940 program. Checks will be issued on approved applications when funds are required.

C. Bert Smith, Field Supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration will take applications at the Post Office in Bath, N. Y., on Tuesday, April 9.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks, or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Men leaders of boys' agricultural clubs within Steuben County will meet for their second leaders' training school on Thursday, April 11 at 10:00 A. M. in the National Hotel in Bath.

The morning program will be in charge of Harold A. Willman, livestock specialist from the College of Agriculture at Cornell University. Subjects to be covered will be New York State 4-H livestock projects, demonstrated by slides; feeding dairy calves and heifers; nomenclature; how to give reasons when judging livestock. Other topics to be touched upon will be the livestock program at county and state fairs and the Buffalo lamb sale.

After lunch, the afternoon session will be in charge of Professor C. M. Bice. Mr. Bice is regularly an extension poultryman of Hawaii, but was recently transferred to Cornell University on an exchange fellowship. In addition to showing colored slides of poultry and other enterprises of Hawaii, Professor Bice will touch upon the aim and scope of poultry 4-H projects, methods used in presenting poultry instruction at meetings. The subject of feeding baby chicks and pullets as recommended to 4-H Club members will be dealt with at some length.

Opportunities will be available for questions in both the morning and afternoon sessions. Because of the importance and popularity of livestock and poultry projects in Steuben County, a 100% attendance of 4-H men leaders is anticipated.

LINDLEY

Janice Nichols spent a part of the Easter vacation with her parents, and returned to Mansfield to resume her studies at State Teachers College, Tuesday, March 25.

Wild geese were seen wending their way north, many days ago. But no spring birds have been noted so far. The mail is brought from Lindley on this route, mainly by teams as yet. The heavy winds have kept the roads filled with snow in spite of the many times they have been opened by the snow plow.

The Shadow Social scheduled to be held at Freeman Grange Hall, was postponed because of inclement weather.

The Addison unit of Home Bureau, have been extended an invitation to hold their next regular meeting at Freeman Grange Hall April 17, with a picnic dinner at noon.

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS

This large sum will be invested in time by Steuben County farmers this season. In addition to the money, consider the work involved in the liming of tens of thousands of acres. It's a big job.

new plan Mr. French will receive $25 every two weeks throughout the year and be on call 52 weeks. It is the belief of the village fathers that under this plan more work can be done and longer range programs for repairs be carried on for the streets. He will also drive the village truck. Mr. French will be custodian of the village hall. There were no other applications for street commissioner. Usually there are many. John Bullock has been custodian and has lived right at the hall rent, heat and light free. There has been some criticism of his custodianship owing to the condition of the walk about the village hall during the past winter.

The new plan will also eliminate the expense of cleaning village jail and linen for which bills have been paid monthly. A saving of over $500 is expected to be made on account of the change, which met the approval of all trustees.

Committee Appointees

Mayor Sisto announced his committee appointments as follows: Street committee, Hubert Orr and William Cooper; light and water committee, Albert Root and Norman Phelps, Sr.; park and city hall, Mr. Phelps and Mr. Cooper; fire department, Mr. Orr; sidewalk, and sewer, Mr. Root and Mr. Orr. Mayor Sisto asked the members to cooperate and work together to see that things are done for the improvement of the village.

Aid Library

The Mayor brought to the attention of the Board that Library Trustees Charles Brewster and Mrs. Samuel LaGrange were ill and unable to be present at the meeting and they asked him to bring before the board the matter of increasing the library fund. Bonds of the library are not paying and the sum of $200 now being given is inadequate. The library board would like to have the grant raised to $250. Trustees Orr said the library was one worthwhile institution in the village and should be supported. Mayor Sisto said the increased appropriation would be the greatest thing the board could do to help the library for nearly everyone in the village uses the library. The grant was given.

John Gangeme, section foreman for the B. and O. Railroad presented a bill for $7.77 for removing the sand bag wall built by volunteers during Sunday's flood across B & O tracks. He spoke of the readiness with which volunteer workers built the wall, but the reluctance with which they volunteered to remove it when the flood danger was over, so that trains could be run.

A bond of $7,500 was approved for the village treasurer. This is a routine procedure. The First National Bank was approved as depository for village funds.

Budget

The budget, previously published in this paper, was discussed. This budget is about $100 less than last year. The hearing on this budget will be held Tuesday, April 16 from 1 to 2 o'clock in the Hubbs Electric Store at which time taxpayers may review the budget and make suggestions for its change or improvement.

One of the big items in the budget was the item of hydrant rental of $1735. Discussion of this item came when sewers being clogged was discussed. The members felt that the board pays enough for water so that hydrants should be flushed regularly and water should be used to flush sewers before digging is resorted to in case of stoppage. It is the opinion of board members that not over $300 worth of water is used annually to fight fires.

Advertiser Thanked

Trustee Orr thanked the Addison Advertiser for the cooperation given on the board during the past year, especially in the matter of requests to property owners to repair their sidewalks. The board members concurred in this expression.

And the board members also expressed their appreciation to the people of the village who did

Partial Eclipse Sun., April 7

Late on Sunday afternoon there will be visible in a belt across the southern states an interesting astronomical event, an annular eclipse of the sun. In the central zone, the sun at mid-eclipse will appear as a fiery ring surrounding a dark disk. In the rest of the country, it will be seen in partial eclipse.

As to the cause of this spectacular occurrence, it is well known that several times each year the moon passes between the earth and sun, shutting off the solar rays over a part of the earth's surface. In a total eclipse, the entire light of the sun is blotted out in the central belt, which is usually about 150 miles wide and several thousand miles long, and bordered on each side by an area of partial eclipse.

In the coming eclipse, the moon is in a distant part of its orbit, and consequently its disk is too small to completely cover the sun's face. As a result, an annular, or ring, eclipse will be visible in the central zone, which will this time extend across Texas, southern Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and northern Florida.

In addition the encroachment of the moon on the solar face will begin at 3:47. At 5:02 the middle of the eclipse will occur, when 83 percent of the sun's diameter will be blotted out. And at 6:10, shortly before sunset, the moon will move off the solar face, and old Sol will again shine forth in all his glory.

In observing the eclipse, caution must be taken to avoid injury to the eyes, for even at the time of maximum darkening, the unobscured portion of the sun will be exceedingly bright. Dark photographic film or heavily smoked glass is very satisfactory for protecting the eyes.

Eclipses run in series, and not until May 10, 1941, will this one be again visible in the United States. At that time, the central belt will be some distance further north, and consequently the partial eclipse visible in Addison will be larger in size than that to be seen next Sunday afternoon.

Mickey Rooney in "Young Tom Edison" Starts Sat. at Fox

Giving Mickey Rooney his first portrayal of a real life character, a role in which the boy star has an opportunity to prove that he is a genuine actor, "Young Tom Edison" opens at the Fox Theatre next Saturday for an engagement of 3 days.

MIKEY ROONEY

Not only does this picture present Rooney with his first biographical role but it is the first picture ever given a juvenile player, despite the fact that many adults have played real-life characters repeatedly.

"Young Tom Edison" also marks the second teaming of Mickey with Virginia Weidler, who scored as his nemesis in "Out West with the Hardys". She plays his sister in the present picture, a role which Hollywood believes will definitely make her a star.

In the two other stellar roles of the picture, Fay Bainter, plays Mrs. Edison and George Bancroft, Mr. Edison. Others in the cast are Eugene Pallette, Victor Kilian, Bobbie Jordan, J. M. Kerrigan, Lloyd Corrigan, John Kellogg, Clem Bevans, Eily Malyon and Harry Shannon.

April is Month of Many Meetings For Home Bureau

Women interested in the Home Bureau program in Steuben County are planning a busy month during April combining further project studies and conferences with specialists in preparation for next year's work. The following special sessions are scheduled.

The meeting for discussion of the results of the Pneumonia Control project has been re-scheduled for Friday, April 5. Unit Health Leaders are urged to note this second change in the original plans. After several changes this meeting will now be held in the Courthouse in Bath beginning at 1:30 as stated above on April 5. The meeting will be in charge of Dr. William M. Smith who conducted the Leaders' Training Schools in the fall. Dr. Smith was recently transferred to a new territory but is returning for this special meeting with Steuben County leaders. The afternoon will be devoted to a summary of the questionnaires used by unit leaders in their Pneumonia Control work and Dr. Smith will discuss the place of a pneumonia control program in the whole public health situation. Mrs. Edith McMahon, executive committee member of the Steuben County Home Bureau, in charge of health work in the county, invites not only unit health leaders but also all women in the county interested in public health problems. The Pneumonia Control program was carried on in cooperation with the County Medical Society and State Health Department.

On April 11 and 12 Miss Lillian Shaben, foods and nutrition specialist from the College of Home Economics, will meet with unit leaders for their second demonstration in the project on Foods for Health and Good Looks. Washing Revealed To Be Science

Too few women know how many gallons of water to each pound of soiled clothing is required to achieve a successful washing.

Washing is a science. A definite science that has to do with ridding fabrics of accumulated soil and bacteria. A science that is as important to family health and happiness as successful cooking. During a recent survey, it was discovered that the average woman uses only 1.7 gallons of water for each pound of clothes when she does the family washing. This probably accounts for the high bacteria count in most washing done at home and the gradual graying of fabrics.

The modern professional laundry, however, uses 4.5 gallons of water for every pound of washing entrusted to its scientific care.

Another point brought out in the survey has to do with the changing of water while doing the family washing. The average homemaker changes the water only three times during the washing period, while the average professional laundry never uses less than ten complete changes of water, five for washing and five for rinsing.

Fireworks Ban Becomes Law

Albany, N. Y.—The bill of Senator Earle S. Warner of the 42nd district to prohibit the sale of fireworks within the state of New York, and their use except under license, was passed by the state senate last week. The vote was 29 to 13.

This represents a decisive victory for Warner in the face of strong opposition by powerful interests of fireworks concerns which had defeated the bill once this session.

Warner demanded a reconsideration of the bill on the floor of the Senate which he obtained and then went out and secured the votes necessary to pass it.

Following the example of the senate the assembly later passed the bill by the vote of 77 to 49. Wheeler Milroe, assemblyman from Canastota, Cortland County, led the fight in the assembly for the bill.

The sale and use of fireworks will be illegal in this state providing Governor Lehman signs the bill. It will prevent the annual loss of millions of dollars, of numerous lives and of untold accidents during the 4th of July uproar.

The bill contains a provision for issuing licenses to responsible parties to display fireworks on special occasions.

Senator Warner, who is president of the New York State Flood Commission of which Attorney Charles L. Crane of Addison is counsel, was in Washington for several days in conference with Army engineers laying out a program of work for flood prevention in the counties of the Southern Tier including Steuben, for 1940.

County "A" Baseball League Split—Addison in Western Half

The Knights will open their league baseball season Tuesday, April 30 opposing Canisteo at Canisteo. This was determined at a meeting of Steuben County scholastic officials in Bath Monday night. Principal Irving R. Gladstone of the Addison High School is president of the league and presided at the meeting. Coach William J. Miller of the local school also attended.

The local schedule will have several non-league as well as league games. The first game of the season will be an exhibition match with Northside High of Corning to be played in Addison April 26.

The league officials divided the "A" league teams of the county in two sections, putting Addison, Bath, Canisteo and Hornell in the western division and Corning Free Academy, Northside and Painted Post in the eastern section.

The winners of the eastern section will play the winners of the western section in a three game playoff series, May 21, 24, 28 to represent Steuben County "A" league in the sectional play offs in June.

The balance of the local schedule as far as league games are concerned is as follows:

May 10—Canisteo here.
May 14—At Hornell.
May 17—Bath here.
Coach Miller will schedule other non-league games to bring the local schedule to 12 games if possible. Elkland and Westfield are expected to be on the schedule.

Steuben Assemblyman Assails Pay Increase for High State Officers

Albany—Weary from a fourteen-hour drive for adjournment, members of the Assembly rose with renewed life as Assemblyman William M. Stuart of Steuben County sprang to his feet violently attacking in an impassioned speech the Dunigan bill, which would increase the salaries of the comptroller and the attorney general. This measure, which had shortly passed the senate and was reported by the Assembly Rules Committee about 30 minutes before final adjournment of the 1940 legislature, provided for an increase from $12,000 to $20,000 per year in the salaries of these two offices.

"When I first heard," roared Mr. Stuart, "that this measure had been proposed I could not believe it possible that anyone would have the nerve, the unmitigated gall to submit to this House such a proposal. We have called ourselves the ECONOMIC LEGISLATURE, both this year and last. We have cut the education fund and we have reduced the salaries of the little fellows. Let us not boost the pay of those officials who are already in the higher brackets."

GLF is Topic of Readers' Digest March Story known to thousands of farmers throughout New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania as the G.L.F., is the subject of an article by Webb Waldron, condensed from the Forum in the March issue of Reader's Digest.

Under the title, "When 125,000 Buyers Cooperate," the article points out that by acting collectively and pooling their buying power, 125,000 farmers are able to buy "better food for land, beast and human. Better tools, insecticides, roofing, fences, paints, tires." They have "stimulated manufacturers of farm supplies to produce better stuff at the same price—or less." The G.L.F. has, the author says, created the most powerful business organization of farmers in existence.

G.L.F.'s headquarters are just on the edge of Cornell University campus on that agricultural school for facts and guidance, but frequently finances fellowships at Cornell, the New Jersey Agricultural College and Penn State research studies of soil, seed, fertilized and animal care.

Organized in 1920, the G. L. F. now operates 150 retail stores, the managers of which are required to attend once a year the G.L.F. School of Cooperation at Ithaca, their expenses paid, in order to keep up to date in agricultural knowledge. The Reader's Digest article concludes that the G.L.F.'s "achievement demonstrates the power of men when they work together."

The following children earned a half holiday from school Friday, March 28, for being neither absent nor tardy during the month of March: Gene Wheatcraft, Berton, Merton and Calista Hibbard.

NORTH JASPER

The Jasper snow shovel and a force of men were in this section opening roads that were blocked by the last blizzard. The road from A. L. Van Skiver's to the Everett Burchard home was closed to all traffic except by horse drawn vehicles. In some places it was said that the one way traffic lanes were drifted full. It is hoped this will be the last time this season the plows will have to be called out to open roads.

The warm weather has caused the snow to begin thawing so fast that the creek banks will not accommodate the large quantities of water and ice, and they are overflowing their banks and fields and roads as well, are all afloat. Sunday night red lights were placed at the H. S. Lamson bridge to warn motorists.

Does Your Soil Need Lime

Every farmer is invited to bring samples of soil to Whitmore's Hardware April 10, anytime during the day. Several samples at plow depth should be taken from each field that they are interested in to learn how much lime is needed for the growth of clover or alfalfa. The soil can be brought in paper sacks or glass jars and may be wet. Farmers are urged to bring soil to the soil clinic which is available to them all. Farmers can sign up in the 1940 Agriculture Program and order lime at the same time.

"I'VE ADVISED A LOT OF PEOPLE TO BUY A PONTIAC!"

"A lot of people look at the size and quality of a Pontiac and decide without ever investigating that Pontiac's price is beyond their reach."

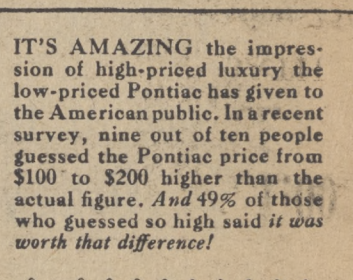

"They spot me in my big, new Pontiac and inquire how I can afford it. Few realize that Pontiac's price is right down with the lowest."

"I tell them to take a good look at a Pontiac price tag. It's an eye-opener. And that's why I'm driving a Pontiac."

"I never miss a chance to show off my Pontiac. There isn't a smoother engine on earth, and I'm getting three to four more miles a gallon."

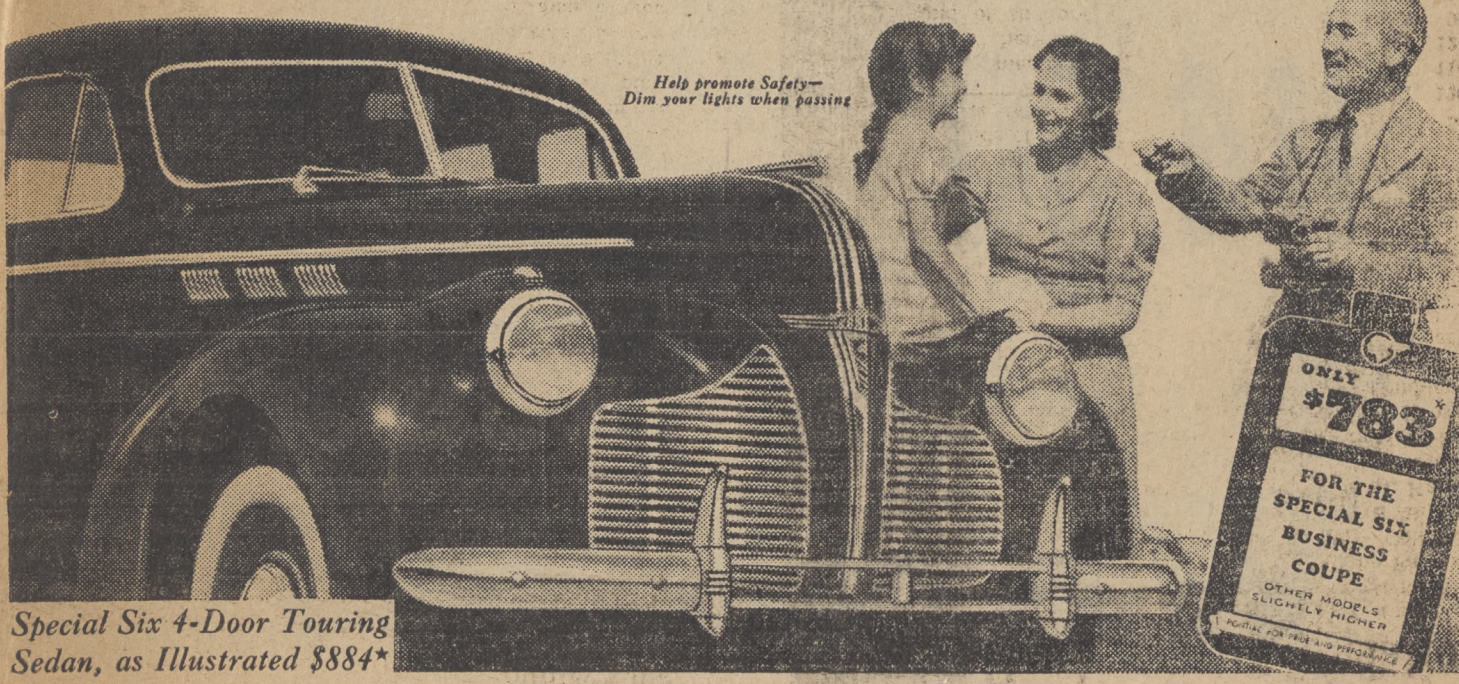

IT'S AMAZING the impression of high-priced luxury the low-priced Pontiac has given to the American public. In a recent survey, nine out of ten people guessed the Pontiac price from $100 to $200 higher than the actual figure. And 49% of those who guessed so high said it was worth that difference!

IT'S HUMAN NATURE to let your friends in on a good thing. That's why Pontiac owners are so busy advising their friends to buy the new 1940 Pontiac. They're pointing out that, at a price right down with the lowest, Pontiac delivers you a big, long-wheelbase car—wide-seated and roomy—furnished and finished in luxurious fashion—and powered by a power-packed engine that challenges the gasoline economy of the smallest cars.

Why postpone that big-car, quality-car thrill? What's to stop you, when a big, beautiful Pontiac costs so little?

*Delivered at Pontiac, Mich. Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice. A General Motors Value.
